Dimitria

The institution was initiated by the municipality of Thessaloniki, in 1965 and it goes on continuously till today

Dimitria

It includes musical and theatrical events, (painting, sculpture, construction, etc) exhibitions, as well as the organization of conferences

Dimitria

Every autumn, top composers and conductors, charismatic sculptors and painters and famous artists who give performances give their own tone

History (1/5)

According to the origin that the institution is based on, products of the hinterland are exchanged with sea products – this tradition was called Dimitria during the era of Byzantium.

History (2/5)

Later the morals and traditions were influenced and moved to Thessaloniki. The fair, having this name, was blooming in 14th century, the so called “Golden Century” of today’s second largest city of Greece.

History (3/5)

In October 1966 the institution was revived, despite the Turkish Domination and the two World Wars that had happened. The initial name of the new Dimitria was the “New Festival”.

History (4/5)

The first organization included just 11 events. Soon, though, the number of the events was multiplied and it reached a three digit number.

History (5/5)

In 1995, Dimitria got included in the European Union of International Festivals and took a place between the most important artistic events in all Europe.
